Career Profile

My name is Kalogeitonas Georgios and I am a graduate of the School of Applied Mathematics and Physical Science at the National Technological University of Athens (NTUA).

I am working as a Full-stack Developer at EnterID using my skills in PHP, SQL, HTML, and CSS.

In addition to web applications in my spare time, I enjoy building physical computing and IOT projects using micro-controllers like atmega, stm32, esp8266, or esp32.

I also enjoy bringing ideas to life by additive (3d printer) or subtracting manufacturing.

Education

Integrated master, Applied Mathematics and Physics

2002 - 2010

National Technical University of Athens (NTUA)

I pursued my studies in Applied Mathematics and Physics at the National Technical University of Athens. This rigorous academic program equipped me with a solid foundation in mathematical modeling, problem-solving, and analytical thinking. I gained valuable insights into the principles of physics and their real-world applications. My time at this esteemed institution honed my research and critical thinking skills, preparing me for a successful career in fields that require a strong quantitative background.
